Ontario has the highest tuition fees in the country at an average of almost $7,000 per year. In October, Premier McGuinty promised to reduce tuition fees by 30%.

Today, students are going to hold him to that promise.

▶ City of Ottawa workers attempt to fix a burst water main on Bank Street near Riverside Drive on Monday. The city has seen a rash of water-main breaks in the last month, and suffered a serious break last year that crimped Barrhaven's water supply for months. Fixing the city's aging infrastructure will mean increased water rates and debt.

Water bills set to go up

- City needs $2.7 billion over 10 years to fix old water infrastructure
- But it can only afford $2.1 billion

Ottawa residents will be seeing water-bill hikes of six per cent this year, with similar increases every year for the next decade, in order for the city to catch up on major water and sewer repairs.

If approved, the hike would add $37.82 to an average household's bill for a total average bill of $668.19 in 2012.

The increase follows Mayor Jim Watson's budget announcement in the fall of an ambitious plan called Ottawa on the Move to advance the rebuilding of many roads, and, with that, the water-and-sewer infrastructure under many of them.

"This staff recommendation shows that this city is committed to improving its vast network of stormwater, wastewater and water infrastructure, not just for residents today, but for future generations," said Coun. Maria McRae, who heads the city's environment committee.

The hikes keep coming with an additional seven per cent in 2013, again in 2014, six per cent in 2015 and in 2016, and five per cent each year after that. On top of rate increases, the plan would also add $460 million in debt to the city's books over the next decade.

Commit to organ donation with Facebook app

A Sudbury-based company launched a new Facebook application Monday to help raise awareness about organ donation after high-profile figures, such as Justin Bieber and Tom Brady, recently highlighted the issue through social media.

Pop star Bieber tweeted 20-year-old Hélène Campbell of Ottawa on Jan. 21 to support her Twitter-based organ-donor awareness campaign as she waits for a double-lung transplant in Toronto.

Brady, the New England Patriots quarterback, has for the past month been engaging his fans on Facebook to help find a kidney donor for retired football coach Tom Martinez.

The creators of mysendoff.com are following their efforts by encouraging Facebook users in North America to sign a "social contract" by installing the Giving Means Living Facebook app to tell friends which organs they have committed to donate.

"Ninety per cent of North Americans support organ donation, but only about one-third of them actually go and take any steps," said Colin Firth (no, not the British actor), president and co-founder of mysendoff.com.

"What we are doing with our app through Facebook is putting it right in front of people and giving them an easy way to at least indicate to their friends and family their wishes."

Firth said the app has a link to the Canadian Blood Services organ-donor registration system to make it official.

Android users a racy lot: Survey

Canadian devotees of Google smartphones deemed seducers by dating website Match.com

JOE LOFARO
@METRONEWS.CA

If you're reading this article on your Android phone, then you're more likely to have sex on a first date, according to new survey results released Tuesday by Match.com.

The survey was executed for the international dating site in order to look at the dating habits of single Canadian men and women of various ages across Canada.

From Oct. 13 to 15, 1,068 Canadians were surveyed on everything from whether they have dated someone in the workplace to drinking alcohol on a first date, and at the end of the survey they were asked whether they use an iPhone, Android or BlackBerry smartphone.

It turns out that users of Google's Android phones are apparently wilder than other smartphone users. Sixty-two per cent of Android singles said they have had sex on a first date, compared to 57 per cent of iPhone users and 48 per cent of BlackBerry users.

IPhone users are more likely to wait one day to reach out after a first date, whereas Android and BlackBerry users will wait two to three days.

Kimberly Moffit, Match.com psychotherapist and relationship insider, said the survey shouldn't be taken too seriously, but it can open a window into people's dating habits.

"As a psychotherapist, if somebody walked into my office for a psychological assessment (I wouldn't) take a look at their phone and say, 'Oh, wow, you must be this or you must be that,'" said Moffit. "This is just a fun tidbit of information."

The results from Android users (a.k.a "the seducers," according to the survey) surprised her the most, as they are most likely (55 per cent) to have a one-night stand than other smartphone users.

"Definitely a racy crowd, those Android users," she said.

Although the survey labelled BlackBerry users as "the drunk diallers," they are less likely to reach out the day after a first date, have sex on a first date or visit an online dating site.

No reason was given as to why that is.

But Ottawa sex therapist Sue McGarvie said BlackBerry users tend to fit the corporate, conventional stereotype, which may explain the tardy post-date phone call (or text).

"They tend to be a little more traditional in terms of their dating approach, meaning that you would be waiting a couple of days, which, to me, is the way you handle it," she said.

McGarvie thought the survey results were funny more than anything else.

One thing she thought the results nailed on the nose, though, was the advice that looking at your phone during a date is a definite deal-breaker.

On the street

Does the kind of cellphone a person uses tell you what they are like as a date? For instance, are iPhone users really more romantic? Are BlackBerry users really drunk diallers?

Jae Kim
"I don't mind what kind of cellphone they have. I don't even have a cellphone."

Tony Park
"That's ridiculous. You can maybe tell how rich someone is by how they dress or what kind of car they drive. A cellphone is a cellphone."

Kelly Kaiser
"My husband has an iPhone. He is not a romantic.... He's probably surfing the web while he's talking to me."

Students want tuition breaks spread wider

Money for tuition grants targeted at middle-class families would be better spent on giving a smaller tuition break to everyone, a student group says.

The Ontario wing of the Canadian Federation of Students is asking the provincial government to give all students a 13-per cent tuition reduction rather than a grant worth about 30 per cent to a select group.

The province's new grant program offers college students $730 and university students $1,600 back from their tuition each year — but not if their parents make more than $160,000 a year or if they are part-time, designated as international, at private colleges, in graduate programs, or they graduated from high school more than four years ago.

"Students are feeling very upset now that they're realizing that many of them aren't getting it," said Nora Loreto, a spokesperson for the Ontario wing of the Canadian Federation of Students.

The group calculated that a 13 per cent tuition reduction would cost the same as the $430 million grant program.

"It'll save millions of dollars in administration, (and) lots of headaches," said Loreto.

▶ Minister of Training, Colleges and Universities Glen Murray, seen here at a press conference at Algonquin College on Tuesday, says the province's grant program should ease students' concerns about rising tuition.

The Ontario wing of the Canadian Federation of Students will be trying to get that message to the provincial government today as they protest on Parliament Hill and at campuses across the province during the Students National Day of Action.

Yesterday, Minister of Training, Colleges and Universities Glen Murray visited Algonquin College for a press conference about the grant program. He said it should ease the students' concerns about rising tuition and the province is planning further initiatives to address the groups not covered by the grant.

The province has also offered grants to students who have recently returned from the workforce, funded capital projects to increase schools' capacities, and tripled funds for student aid, Murray said.

"Is it enough? No. Do the students have reason to be protesting? Absolutely. We have to do more work for mature students, independent students," he said. "We would agree with the students that we're not where we need to be yet, but this tuition grant is a huge step in the right direction."

A day ahead of Wednesday's planned tuition protest by students, two politicians visited Algonquin College for a press conference urging students to take advantage of free money from the provincial government.

The province estimates 90,000 students are eligible for a grant worth about 30 per cent of their tuition, but have not yet registered online to receive their cheques.

"These are people who've won on a lottery ticket, but haven't listened to the radio to find out and go and cash it in," said Minister of Training, Colleges and Education Glen Murray, who visited the school with Ottawa West–Nepean MPP Bob Chiarelli.

70%

A Statistics Canada survey that found 70 per cent of high school grads who do not go on to post-secondary education cite financial reasons.

About 70,000 students have registered and another 160,000 students will get the grant automatically because they are part of the Ontario Student Assistance Program.

Many students at Algonquin said they'd had already applied for their cheques, were covered by OSAP, or they know they aren't eligible, but some like Cameron Micomonaco and Sam Rochon think they are eligible for the tuition rebates but hadn't heard about them.

"I haven't heard a thing, or at least haven't paid attention if I have," said Rochon, adding an email to his school email would have been the best way to reach him.

Now that they know about the program, they'll apply, both said.

"Yeah, I'd like 30 per cent off my tuition — that sounds fun," said Micomonaco.

"Any amount off sounds good," said Rochon.

While we always love to share student success stories, on occasion one really stands out, surprising even us. This year we want to recognize Marc Ramsey for providing our student success story of the year. Marc hit the ground running when he started working with MMG last spring. He has completed three flips including a high-rise luxury condo and a house that has been fully rehab-ed. Even more impressive is his most recent accomplishment.Marc just purchased a 44 unit apartment complex with three separate buildings for a mere $150,000. Once the rehab is completed, Marc will still be under $500,000. This will give him a stabilized asset of one MILLION DOLLARS with a NOI of over $200,000 per year. We cannot express how proud we are of Marc's accomplishment and are thrilled that MMG was able to help him realize his financial dreams.

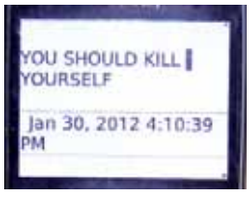
When bullying moves online, the damage multiplies — fast

Cyber-bullying can haunt both school-age victims and bullies long after graduation

HEATHER BUCHAN
OTTAWA@METRONEWS.CA
FOR METRO CANADA

The Internet has created a new and oftentimes more emotionally damaging type of bully: The cyber-bully — one who can follow you home.

"Before everyone was online with multiple computers at home, bullying stopped at three o'clock," said Monika Wierzbicki of the Canadian non-profit anti-bullying organization Stop a Bully. "There was a sort of buffer. Kids could go home, see their parents, have dinner and to some extent forget about bullying for a while. Now, a person can potentially be bullied non-stop, not just in school."



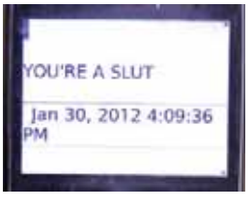
Katie Neu, 20, knows this all too well. The Listowel, Ont., resident and founder of Bullying Canada, became the victim of intense cyber-bullying when she was a high school student. The relentless hateful messages eventually pushed her to leave school and continue her studies from home.

"I would get bullied at school, then go home, turn on my computer and be victimized there, too," said Neu, who has continued to do college and university courses online. She said even now she still receives hate mail and has negative comments put on the Internet about her.

"Unfortunately, even if the (bully) eventually realizes that what they have done is wrong, undoing the damage can be very difficult."
MONIKA WIERZBICKI, STOP A BULLY ORGANIZATION

Anonymity

Wierzbicki said the Internet has changed the course of bullying irrevocably. Where traditional schoolyard bullies had to engage in face-to-face contact with their targets, the online world provides bullies with relative anonymity. As a result, bullies feel protected and do and say things they would otherwise not do in person.



In fact, a 2008 University of Toronto study cited on bewebaware.ca found that 75 per cent of the young people who admitted to cyber-bullying someone had never bullied anyone offline or face-to-face.

After-effects

Wierzbicki said that bullying, regardless of the form, can have implications for many years following the incident for both the bully and victim; however, the Internet has compounded the effects because of the immediacy and scope of the medium.

ALL PHOTOS: RYAN TAPLIN/METRO

"Pictures and comments can be posted and seen by (potentially) thousands of people in a matter of minutes," said Wierzbicki, adding that even if a bully repents and removes the offending material, a limitless number of people can have already seen it and downloaded it."

And the offending posts may not just haunt a bully's victims.

"Because employers now have the ability to check up on (prospective employees) by googling them, or checking their Facebook page, any cyber-bullying a person committed has the potential to negatively affect their job prospects," said Wierzbicki. "The Internet can keep a record of previous negative behaviour that can be accessed by anyone who wants to find it. Discovered months or even years later, it can reflect poorly on a person who may in fact have already made amends, changed their behaviour and become a completely different person."

Consequences

According to Media Awareness Network, a Canadian media and digital literacy organization, more kids may be likely to engage in bullying behaviour online because they can't see or hear the effects of their actions and because many forms of social media lack supervision.

As a result of the increase in cyber-bullying incidents, in 2007 Ontario made changes to the province's Safe Schools Act, introducing a new legislation that made cyber-bullying an offence for which a student can be suspended or expelled from school.

On metronews.ca/bullying

— We take a look at anti-bullying legislation across the country.
— Missed a day? Check out our full three-part series on bullying.
— Have a comment? Let us know online, or tweet us @metroottawa.

How bullies can make it right

Monika Wierzbicki's top three tips on making amends:

- The first step is to remove anything posted online that has caused another person pain or embarrassment.
- Make a personal apology, preferably by phone or email to the victim.
- Help out with an anti-bullying organization at school or in the community.

What is cyber-bullying?

This new form of bullying is when the Internet, cellphones or other devices are used to send or post text or images intended to hurt or embarrass another person. This can include threats, sexual remarks, pejorative labels, making someone the subject of ridicule on forums or posting false statements as fact aimed at humiliation.

Reader response

Re: "My bully, my friend" (Jan. 30). We asked: Should reformed bullies reach out to their victims or leave the past behind?

- @Aquaryan1972: I had to let go my pain of the bullies. However, I have not forgiven the adults who ignored my pleas for help
- @redsaidfred: If a bully wants to make amends and the victim is willing, why not? Sounds like a #happyending
- @laurynzmum: I had a childhood bully apologize to me many years after
- @onijoseph: it depends if victims consent to bullies contacting them.
- @unconvmummy: Absolutely but skip the hey bro arm punch! An apology via email or note goes a long way towards closure.
- @anitaelizar: Not everyone can forgive their bullies.

Via Facebook: Tj Freezn: It's good to first ask qualifying questions, so that they don't turn into an internet bully too lol. I'm glad you two patched it up! :D

Re: "Girl-style bullying vs. boy-style bullying" (Jan. 30). We asked, What's more hurtful — social alienation or physical bullying?

- @acidmiasma: Physical bullying is more hurtful. Social aspect usually the hidden motive, boys or girls.
- @jme_morin: Social & physical bullying are both equally hurtful. A combo of the two is worse.
- @markyeg: social alienation
- @kirkschmidt: through either means, the emotional impact is hard to shake, and never fully leaves. #BulliedNerd
- @WalterRogers1: All methods of bullying are not acceptable
- @rjperry61: As a principal I found dealing with phys bullying far easier than psychological bullying! Both happen to and by boys and girls
- @LiannePerry: That's a really odd question. Who can answer for everyone? We are individuals, all affected differently. #Bullying
- @inuk37: Bullying is bullying — abuse is abuse

Milt wins, Newt not so kosher

Romney takes Florida despite Gingrich's low-blow Jewish jibe

Mitt Romney coasted to a decisive victory in the battleground state of Florida on Tuesday, regaining the upper hand in his efforts to win the Republican presidential nomination.

Unofficial results had Romney winning 47 per cent of the vote compared to 32 per cent for his biggest foe, Newt Gingrich, 13 per cent for Rick Santorum and seven per cent for Ron Paul.

Victory tasted sweet for Romney after Gingrich got down and dirty in the 11th hour.

Gingrich accused Romney of essentially forcing Holocaust survivors to eat non-kosher food.

In a robo-call in the Sunshine State, Gingrich said the former Massachusetts governor vetoed "a bill paying for kosher food for our seniors in nursing homes — Holocaust survivors, who for the first time, were forced to eat non-kosher, because Romney thought five dollars was too much to pay for our grandparents to eat kosher."

The ad, clearly aimed at Florida's large Jewish and elderly populations, prompted immediate condemnation from the Romney campaign.

Beating case: I was forced to confess

The man accused in the savage beating of a Canadian tourist says he was forced to sign a confession he never read.

Jose Ramon Acosta Quintero, 28, admits he hit Sheila Nabb in a hotel elevator, but denies he wanted to kill her.

He told the newspaper Noroeste that he understands the authorities are looking to clean up Mazatlan's image because the victim was a Canadian tourist, but argues they can do that without charging him with attempted murder.

Quintero has admitted he ran into Nabb, who he says was naked, in her hotel's elevator after he and a friend snuck in to have some drinks at the bar.

Nabb, 37, had been vacationing with her husband at the upscale Hotel Riu when she was found lying in a pool of blood in a resort elevator. She is now back in Calgary.

Shafia son to appeal, lawyer says

The lawyer for Hamed Shafia says his client has filed notice to appeal his first-degree murder conviction in the deaths of four family members.

Patrick McCann says Hamed Shafia, 21, has taken the first step by filing an inmate's notice to the Court of Appeal for Ontario.

Shafia and his parents Mohammad Shafia, 58, and Tooba Yahya, 42, were each found guilty of four counts of first-degree murder on Sunday in Kingston.

They were given automatic life sentences with no chance of parole for 25 years.

Clinton: Syria won't be a Libya

But key player Russia fears military intervention

Will Syria be another Libya? Definitely not, says U.S. Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton.

Clinton told the UN Security Council on Tuesday that United Nations action to end the bloodletting in Syria would be different from NATO-led efforts in Libya that ousted Moammar Gadhafi.

"I know that some members here may be concerned that the Security Council is headed toward another Libya," Clinton said, referring to Russia's refusal to back measures against Syria.

"That is a false analogy," she said.

Russia, however, is emerging as a key player in international efforts to stop the bloodshed.

"How long do Syrian families have to live in fear that their children will be killed or tortured before the Security Council will act?"
WILLIAM HAGUE, BRITISH SECRETARY OF STATE FOR FOREIGN AFFAIRS

It worries that a draft measure before the Security Council, could lead to military action and regime change — the result of the NATO airstrikes in Libya.

Syria has been Moscow's top ally in the Middle East since Soviet times.

Syria has been a major customer for Russian arms, buying billions of dollars worth of combat jets, missiles, tanks and other heavy weapons.

Meanwhile, the Arab League again condemned the violence in a fellow Arab country.

Arab League Secretary-General Nabil Elaraby told the council: "We are attempting to avoid any foreign intervention, particularly military intervention" in Syria.

He added. "We have always stressed full respect of the security, sovereignty and territorial integrity of the Syrian people."

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Call it a thank-you demonstration: Crowds shout slogans and carry pictures of Syrian President Bashar in front of the Russian Embassy in Beirut. Russia says it will use its Security Council veto to block any res threatening Syria with military intervention, and the demonstrators are expressing their gratitude. Meanwhile, in Syria, government forces took back control of the eastern suburbs of Damascus after a startling advance by rebel soldiers. But the fact the rebels made it to the doorstep of Assad's power was a dangerous development for the regime.

Don't waste time, get out of Syria, Canadians told

SEAN KILPATRICK/THE CANADIAN PRESS

"Canada condemns the escalation of violence by Syrian security forces."
JOHN BAIRD,
FOREIGN AFFAIRS MINISTER

Syria is slaughtering innocent civilians and it's time for Canadians to get out — and quickly.

That was the message from Foreign Affairs Minister John Baird on Tuesday.

He said the embassy in Damascus, with a skeleton staff, is doing what it can to help Canadians escape.

Canadian officials have made thousands of phone calls in the last month to Canadians in Syria, urging them to leave and offering what help they can.

Baird said it's hard to know how many Canadians are left in the country, but since Dec. 15, about 300 have told Foreign Affairs they have left.

While the Damascus embassy is still open and limited services are available through an honorary consul in Aleppo, there are problems outside those cities, Baird said.

"Due to travel restrictions imposed by the Syrian authorities and the ongoing deterioration of the security situation, our ability to help Canadians in other locations in the country has been significantly reduced."

Eastern European cold snap hits the homeless hardest

At least 58 people have died — as many as 30 in Ukraine, 15 in Poland Temps plunged as low as -27 C

Dozens of homeless people have died in an Eastern Europe cold snap, and some analysts blame a Soviet-era legacy of viewing the homeless as those who need to be punished instead of helped.

Temperatures have plunged to -27 C in some areas. At least 58 people have died overall in the past week, while hundreds have sought medical help for hypothermia and frostbite. Snow and ice have disrupted traffic, power and led to the closure of schools.

Ukraine has been among the hardest-hit countries. As many as 30 people have died on its snow-covered streets, in hospitals and in their own homes in the past four days. Authorities said most of the victims were homeless, and that some victims had been drinking and unaware of the danger.

In central Ukraine, a 44-year-old alcoholic fell asleep on her porch and froze to death, said Olena Didyuk, spokeswoman for the Emergency Situations Ministry.

"Unfortunately, people continue to die, but we are taking all the measures to prevent them."
SVITLANA TIKHONENKO, UKRAINIAN HEALTH MINISTRY SPOKESPERSON

Ukrainian authorities have set up hundreds of heating centres across the country — large green or beige tents — in which the homeless can get warm and are offered sandwiches, boiled potatoes, pork fat, hot tea and coffee.

Still, more than 540 people have been hospitalized with hypothermia and frostbite, Ukrainian health officials said. Ukraine's 1+1 channel broadcast footage of a man being treated for frostbite in his toes, which had turned completely black. "I drank and fell asleep on the bench. I woke up in the middle of the night and couldn't feel my feet," the unidentified man said from a hospital bed.

Hospitals were instructed to refrain from discharging homeless patients — even if treatment was finished — to save them from the cold, said Svitlana Tikhonenko, spokeswoman for the Health Ministry.

Some experts suggested that the high death toll from the cold is linked to authorities' unwillingness and incompetence in dealing with the homeless.

Pavlo Rozenko, an expert on social policy with the Kyiv-based Razumkov Centre, said that Ukrainian authorities suffer from the Soviet legacy of viewing the homeless as alcoholics, drug addicts and do-nothings who need to be punished and locked away.

"The country doesn't know yet how to take care of its homeless," Rozenko said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Authorities sent prison inmates from the Jilava prison in Romania to shovel snow leading to a shelter with some 300 stray dogs and puppies.

Temperatures were below -15 C, while the inmates unblocked pathways.

The shelter was snowed in following blizzards at the end of last week.

Four people have died in Romania due to cold-related causes, according to local media reports.

Temperatures plunged to -27 C in parts of Romania, according to officials.

RIM's cartoons criticized

Characters were based on input from RIM's Twitter followers

CONTRIBUTED

▶ The cartoon graphic for BlackBerry's "Be Bold" campaign.

Four cartoon superheroes in a one-off information graphic had BlackBerry-maker Research In Motion on the defensive Tuesday, as some critics labelled RIM's effort to describe its users as "lame" and "embarrassing."

The Waterloo, Ont.-based company was downplaying the lighthearted take on its loyal smartphone users after the graphic — associated with RIM's "Be Bold" campaign — took an ugly turn on social media as some criticized it for being juvenile.

"This infographic is just intended to be a bit of fun," the company said on its Inside BlackBerry blog on Tuesday.

However, by that point some technology blogs and BlackBerry users had already misinterpreted the superheroes as part of a new advertising campaign.

RIM unveiled the characters in a graphic that broke down its user base into four market segments — naming each after a superhero.

The spunky Gogo Girl was used to describe the users who consider themselves achievers. The more daring Max Stone characterized the adventurous types.

Justin Steele is intended to represent the "advocate," ready to stick up for his friends and Trudy Foreal is the "authentic" who is not afraid to call it as she sees it.

The cartoons led to a decidedly negative response on social media websites. One Twitter user named GoPic encouraged RIM to consider firing its marketing department, while others said the characters looked like they were designed to market to children.

CORPORATE GOVERNANCE

Review suggests split of top RIM roles

After having already replaced top executives Jim Balsillie and Mike Lazaridis, Research In Motion says a review of its corporate governance has concluded that the roles of co-CEO and co-chairmen formerly held by the pair should be split.

The findings of the review, which had been encouraged by an activist shareholder group about a year ago, were released late Monday, just over a week after the company had already replaced the two men.

Activist shareholder Vic Alboini, who pushed for corporate governance changes at RIM, said the report is "moot" given the leadership changes happened before it was issued.

But RIM was able to head off speculation and "snuff out" uncertainty by making the executive changes and then putting out the report, added Alboini, chief executive of Toronto-based Jaguar Financial Corp.

Almost two weeks ago, co-CEOs Balsillie and Lazaridis stepped down from their lead positions at RIM. Both remain on the board of directors but Lazaridis is vice-chairman.

Thorsten Heins was appointed CEO on Jan. 22 but may still get advice from Lazaridis.

Unemployment in eurozone hits high

ALVARO BARRIENTOS/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ A musician plays in Pamplona, Spain, Monday.

Unemployment across the 17 countries that use the euro ended 2011 at a record high, official figures showed Tuesday, a day after EU leaders acknowledged they would have to boost economic growth with the same urgency that they had shown in combating their nations' debts.

Eurostat, the EU's statistics office, said the 10.4 per cent unemployment rate in December was unchanged at its highest level since the euro was launched in 1999, as November's was revised upward from a previous estimate of 10.3 per cent.

Unemployment has been steadily rising over the past year — in December 2010, it stood at 10 per cent — largely because of Europe's debt crisis, and compares badly with the U.S., where unemployment stands at 8.5 per cent. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Canadians need to prioritize retirement cash: BMO

As pensions come under increased pressure from corporate and public-sector cost-cutting, Canadians need to place a higher priority on saving for retirement, says a new report from the Bank of Montreal.

It says the dwindling number of defined-benefit pension plans means more retirees don't have a guaranteed level of retirement income.

"An obvious reason behind this phenomenon is the reluctance of employers to be their employees' retirement income guarantors: In times of low interest rates, uncertain market returns and increasing longevity, the risk is simply too high," said Tina Di Vito, head of the BMO Retirement Institute.

As a result, more Canadians must rely on their own ability to save and invest.

At the same time, Canadians are not placing high priority on a good retirement plan, instead tending to focus on salary and flexible work arrangements, the report says.

The BMO report suggests that more than half of those surveyed could not identify the "must-have features" they would include if they were able to design their own workplace pension plan. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Samsung dealt blow in battle with Apple

Samsung took a hit in its battle against arch-rival Apple on Tuesday, when the European Union announced it will investigate whether it is illegally trying to hinder competitors, while Germany blocked sales of some of its tablets.

Samsung Electronics and Apple Inc. are engaged in a strategic war over patents in many countries across the world as they try to draw market share away from each other.

The EU's antitrust watchdog thinks the South Korean company may be overstepping the bounds, however, and launched a formal investigation of whether Samsung is using lawsuits over key patents on 3G wireless technology to hinder competitors — including Apple.

In Germany, an appeals court ruled in favour of Apple in a separate case, saying Samsung could not sell its Galaxy Tab 10.1 or the Galaxy Tab 8.9 in the country because they too closely resembled the iPad2, in violation of unfair competition laws.

Samsung's successor tablet, the Galaxy Tab 10.1 N, was not affected by the ruling, and the company said that while the decision was disappointing, it was largely irrelevant.

WATCHING THE SUPER BOWL, NO QUESTIONS ASKED

JUST SAYIN' ...

PAUL SULLIVAN
METRO

Like 40 or 50 million North American males, I'm an expert on the Super Bowl, the U.S. football championship so big that, like a Rocky movie, it needs to be described using Roman numerals.

As Sunday's game draws near, more and more people come to me with their questions, such as: "Paul, why don't you get a life and do something worthwhile on Sunday instead of sitting in front of the TV like a zombie for nine hours watching former Pittsburgh Steelers quarterback Terry Bradshaw caper and jibber like the evil clown in IT?"

Questions like that.

So, to be even more helpful, I've compiled a list of MFAQs (most frequently asked questions) to go along with the MVPs and PATs and other acronyms that baffle civilians.

"Q: This year's Super Bowl is being played in Indianapolis. Where is Indianapolis? A: Nowhere."

Q: How old do you have to be to get invited to be the halftime act at the Super Bowl? A: Older than dirt. Like Madonna, who will perform this year's atrocity. Or Elton John, who has made it clear he would never do it, even if asked. Which he wasn't.

Q: Why are the quarterbacks always called "Tom Brady" and the cornerbacks always called "Prince Amakumara"? A: Tradition.

Q: What number is Super Bowl XVLI? A: Why, it's XVLI, of course.

Super Bowl ads are usually more interesting than the game itself. For instance, this year Honda resurrects Ferris Bueller.

Q: How come Matthew Broderick doesn't look a day older than he did 26 years ago, the first time around? A: There's a rumour going around he's part of the same lab experiment that produced Wayne Newton and Justin Bieber. Too bad it didn't work on Madonna.

Q: What is "clock management"? A: Each team has a bunch of time-outs they can invoke at any time during the game. The team that's losing, using an artful combination of time-outs, incomplete passes and fake injuries, can extend the final two minutes of the game for what seems like forever. That's why it's called the two-minute warning.

Q: How many people watch the Super Bowl. A: Thirty billion.… What?

Q: What is tailgating? A: Drinking way too much and throwing up in the parking lot before the game even starts.

Q: This year's Super Bowl is being played in Indianapolis. Where is Indianapolis? A: Nowhere.

Q: So who's going to win on Sunday? A: I am because I get to sit in front of the TV for nine hours … etc.

Q: Who will be the MVP? A: Three-to-one on Tom Brady over Prince Amakumara. Tradition is a big factor.

DeHaan DiCaprio-esque

Recognize this actor? You will after Chronicle and a handful of other movies in 2012

METRO WORLD NEWS IN LOS ANGELES

If Dane DeHaan isn't already a familiar face — and not just because of his resemblance to Leonardo DiCaprio — just give it some time. While fans of HBO's True Blood might already be aware of DeHaan, the 24-year-old Pennsylvania native has an impressive slate of upcoming titles hitting theatres over the next year. And he better get ready.

"I don't know that I do spend a lot of time preparing myself for stardom," DeHaan says with a laugh. "I try to just remind myself how lucky I am, and I'm just doing what I've always loved to do. I've never wanted to be famous, I've only ever wanted to be an actor, and for me that is so much fun that I just look forward to that, and everything else is a really great side-effect of that. I haven't really reached a certain point where I lose a ton of my privacy or anything. So when someone comes up to me and tells me they really like me, I just say thank you."

Of course he says that now. We'll check in with him in another 12 months.

What's on the slate for 2012?

DeHaan will appear in Prohibition-era drama the Wettest County with Tom Hardy, Gary Oldman, Guy Pearce and Shia LaBeouf, as well as the Place Beyond the Pines opposite Ryan Gosling, Bradley Cooper and Eva Mendes. And next month he heads to New York to film writer-director John Krokidas' Beat Generation drama Kill Your Darlings, starring as Lucien Carr opposite Daniel Radcliffe's Allen Ginsberg. Before all of that, though, he stars in Chronicle, an inventive, found-footage-style science fiction film about a trio of high schoolers whose encounter with a mysterious buried object leaves them with awesome telekinetic powers.

House arrest is definitely o-vah: Actress spotted 'going to the restroom with a male companion on numerous occasions in a short amount of time'

It's been a slow week here. Maybe everyone's playing nice and dressing demurely for awards season. Or maybe they're holed up in faraway tropical lands that don't grant visas to mortals. Either way — if a tipsy starlet falls in a bar and no one is there to hear it, we're still bored.

But then, Lindsay Lohan went outside, and it was good.

Although she was only drinking water in the lounge — give it up Lohan, the Academy isn't watching — she did seem to be enjoying something, reports RadarOnline.

"Lindsay was spotted going to the restroom with a male companion on numerous occasions in a short amount of time," a source tells the site, who adds that her eyes looked glassy. When the two of them emerged from the bathroom, Lindsay was giggling."

Drake wants to play Obama

Drake is looking to get back to his acting roots, and he has one particular role in mind: U.S. President Barack Obama.

"I hope somebody makes a movie about Obama's life soon because I could play him," Drake tells VH1.

"That's the goal."

And it's a serious goal, apparently, as the 25-year-old rapper has already been preparing.

"Anytime I see him on TV, I don't change the channel," he says. "I watch all the addresses. I definitely pay attention and listen to the inflections of his voice. If you ask anyone who knows me, I'm pretty good at impressions."

Kissing a girl

We suspect that most people who would enjoy seeing Ashley Greene and Olivia Wilde make out won't be seeing their new film together, Butter.

But make out in it they do, and so we present you with this quote from Greene's interview with Lucky magazine. You're welcome:

"It wasn't that awkward. It's the same idea as having to kiss a male co-star and it's not real. Olivia is such a cool chick and very professional. So we were just messing around and cracking up in between scenes, and it ended up being really fun."

Jolie to Pitt: Zip it, hon

After a spate of interviews in which he discussed marrying Angelina Jolie at their children's wishes, Brad Pitt is tempering his words a bit more. Someone must have said something.

People magazine checked in with the couple about the wedding talk, of which Jolie says, "I think anything said tends to be blown out of proportion." A sheepish Pitt agrees: "Just a little," he says. "Yeah, that was my fault."

Ports of call: cruise passengers find plenty to do on Canada's east coast

The best Caribbean hot spots

Definitive Caribbean.com offers its picks for everything from beaches to spas to music

PHOTOS: METRO WORLD NEWS

For the beach: Antigua and more

When you think of the Caribbean, we know what comes to mind: a gorgeous white sand beach. And rightly so. Many of the best hotels are on prime beach front, or better still, there are beaches that are still wild and remote. There tend to be two distinct coastlines to most islands: the calm Caribbean side and rougher Atlantic side. If you are looking for a lively Caribbean beach resort you'll need to aim for somewhere like Antigua, Barbados, Jamaica or the Dominican Republic. For somewhere more laid back, Anguilla's striking white beaches are hard to beat and many of the smaller islands have beach charm aplenty.

For a spa: Cap Juluca, Anguilla

Fancy a massage with a sea view, or some open-air reflexology? Many of the leading hotels in the Caribbean now have serious spas — not just a few treatment and beauty rooms, but full-service operations led by leading spa companies, including Shambhala, Aveda, Molton Brown and ESPA. You'll also find holistic activities such as meditation, yoga, Tai Chi and Pilates. Try the Cap Juluca, set on its own superb beach in the west of Anguilla. It's one of the Caribbean's most famous and best-loved hotels, has a Wellness Centre, and includes Moorish-style villas. Or the BodyHoliday at LeSPORT is an upbeat resort hotel tucked into its own attractive cove at the northern tip of St Lucia.

For romance: Hermitage Bay, Antigua

The Caribbean is a wonderfully romantic place to get married (As if you couldn't tell by the photos). And it's easier than ever; regulations have loosened up in the past few years. Now in many islands you only have to be resident for two or three days before you can get married. Many hotels offer a wedding service in their grounds with ceremonies under an arbour or on the beach. Alternately, you might opt for the privacy of a tropical villa and garden. Our top pick is the Hermitage Bay Antigua, a low key and elegant small hotel with a magnificent beachfront setting in a secluded west-facing bay. It has just 25 suites, ranged in leisurely fashion along a superb beach.

For music: Jamaica, St. Vincent, Grenadines, Tobago

The Caribbean people are uniquely inventive when it comes to music. There is almost a different rhythm for every island. Reggae, merengue, calypso, salsa (in different versions from Cuba and Puerto Rico), compas, zouk and soca. Some islands have more than one, but almost all are lively, fast and full of explosive joy.

Check out our website for a list of the year's top gigs, island by island. Among the highlights: February is Reggae Month in Jamaica, March brings the SVG Blues & Rhythms Festival to St. Vincent and the Grenadines and April finds the Tobago International Dance Festival in, yes, Tobago.

Saving money on the slopes

Here are tips on shopping around and timing your next ski or snowboarding trip to get the best deals on equipment, lift tickets and lodging

Gear Head

Preparing for a trip to the snow can be daunting, especially for a novice trying to amass all the equipment, from skis, boots and poles — or a board and boots — to goggles and a jacket.

Start by repurposing things you already own: thermals, your heaviest winter jacket, a hat, gloves and sunglasses. Ski-specific clothing is rarely a necessity, though insulated, waterproof pants substantially boost the fun factor. Borrowing from friends can work well, if you know someone your size.

For equipment, bear in mind that even many experts rent their skis, boots and poles if they don't get to the snow more than a couple times each season. You can save 20 per cent or more on rentals by reserving equipment in advance from your resort, says Vail Resorts Inc. spokeswoman Kate Lessman.

Reserve online at rentskis.com, skibutlers.com or your resort's website.

Food bill

Staying in a place with a kitchenette that's not right on the mountain can cut your lodging costs in half, Justin Blackburn of ski-blog.com says, while stashing trail mix, peanuts or candy bars in your backpack each morning can cut your snack bill by two-thirds, compared with ski lodge prices. For lunch, Surette likes to tuck a peanut butter and jelly sandwich into her pocket because it tastes fresh regardless of temperature.

Getting a Lift

With lift tickets running $60 or more per weekend day for adults, it pays to research discounts. Check out websites including liftopia.com, lifttickets.com and getskitickets.com.

You can also peruse Craigslist or inquire with a local ski club to see if someone that lives near you is selling tickets.

Season passes are often less expensive, especially if you buy in early. But that's almost always before the snow starts to fall so pencil out the cost of a pass with only minimum usage to make sure you're getting a deal.

Drink of the week

Full of Flavour Sublimation

This recipe is one of the most efficient ways to enjoy a very refreshing sparkling water cocktail. It is also extremely fresh and natural!

Only certain sparkling waters contain big bubbles that will extract all flavours from the ingredient that is immersed.

Cucumber Version:
- piece of cucumber
- chilled sparkling water

Carefully wash piece of cucumber and cut a slice 5 mm (1/8 inch) thick and 10 cm (4 inches) long.
In a wine glass or tumbler, place cucumber then pour in chilled sparkling water. Serve with a long spoon on the side. In barely a few seconds, the cucumber's essential oils are extracted and enhanced by the strength of the bubbles, producing very refreshing drink, ideal as an aperitif.

Ginger Version:
- fresh ginger
- chilled sparkling water

Cut fine slice from a piece of fresh ginger, peel and rinse. In a wine glass or a tumbler, place the slice of ginger, and then pour in the chilled sparkling water. Serve with a long spoon on the side. The aromatic strength of the ginger blends elegantly with the freshness of the water, producing a vivifying drink for athletes or ginger lovers in general.

Chipotle kicks it up a notch

New York-based Elizabeth Karmel, a grilling and Southern foods expert, shares her recipe for Chipotle Chicken Heat of meat is balanced by a cool orange, jicama and mango slaw

MATTHEW MEAD/ THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

This recipe serves eight.

The secret ingredient is mayonnaise!

The first time anyone told me that, I thought I was going to faint or laugh out loud.

Fast forward to a trip I took to Oaxaca, Mexico, during the February festival season. At each neighbourhood gathering, the women brought out numerous platters and bowls of homemade food. My favourite was a pit-fired chicken dish that had been marinated in a thick chipotle mixture.

I asked our guide, Mexican food expert Susana Trilling, if she could find someone who would let me come to their home and show me how to make this dish. The next day we went to the home of the village's best cook.

She had everything set out on the counter for the dish — chipotles in adobo, onions, limes, chicken thighs and mayonnaise!

As we made the marinade, I realized how smart the mayo was. You can add a lot of flavour to mayonnaise and it stays suspended. Traditional marinades tend to separate. Because the flavours are spread evenly through the marinade, the food you are flavouring gets a more intense and consistent flavour. The mayonnaise also tempers any harshness.

The chicken not only was delicious and memorable, but taught me a great cooking lesson. Today, I frequently use mayonnaise as my "secret" way to impart flavour.

Chipotle Chicken Preparation:

1. In blender, combine chipotles with adobo sauce, white onion, jalapeno, cilantro and lime juice. Add pinch of salt. Blend until smooth. Transfer to a large glass or stainless-steel bowl. Fold in 500 ml (2 cups) of mayonnaise. Taste and adjust seasonings. If it is too spicy, add more mayonnaise.
2. Add chicken pieces, turn to coat, then cover bowl and marinate in refrigerator for 2 to 4 hours, turning occasionally.
3. Heat oven to 160 C (325 F). Set a metal rack over a rimmed baking sheet. Remove chicken from refrigerator and place bone-side down on the rack. Roast until breast meat near bone registers 74 C (165 F) and thigh meat registers 83 C (180 F), 45 minutes. If you don't have a meat thermometer, cook until no longer pink and the juices run clear.
4. Use tongs to carefully transfer chicken to a platter to rest for 5 to 10 minutes before serving. Serve with wedges of lime and mango slaw.

Cool Orange, Jicama and Mango Slaw Preparation:

1. Slice off top and bottom of jicama, then carefully peel it. Use a box grater to grate jicama. In a medium bowl, toss grated jicama with the juice of 1 of the limes.
2. Use a paring knife to trim off the tops and bottoms of each orange, then cut off the remaining skin. One at a time, hold peeled oranges in a cupped hand over the bowl of jicama to catch juices. Cut each orange section between membranes to make individual sections, adding them to jicama as you go.
3. When you have cut all the sections, squeeze leftover membranes to extract as much of the juice as possible. Toss well, then mix in mangoes.
4. Arrange in a bowl or on a platter. Garnish with whole cilantro leaves and a light dusting of cayenne pepper, if desired. Cut remaining lime into wedges for serving with the slaw.

Are you bilingual? What makes you sure that you are or you aren't? Make it clear during the job search

MARISA BARATTA
TALENTEGG.CA

How much of another language do you have to speak or write to be considered bilingual?

• Maya Meyouhas, general manager of Sweetspot Quebec, says that "in Quebec, where most people speak at least two languages, I would consider someone bilingual if they can just as easily communicate (speak and write) in one language as they can in the other."

• Grégoire Holtz, French professor at the University of Toronto, believes bilingualism means being as comfortable in one language as in the other, though you may sometimes hesitate or struggle to translate a thought. Bilingualism also demands a level of understanding where the other language's humour or subtleties are concerned.

ISTOCK

▶ Speak up about your language skills!

• Françoise Mougeon, associate principal of academics and research at Glendon College at York University, feels that one needs to reach "maximum efficiency" and "a thorough command of the language" in order to succeed in all forms of communication.

Is there a way to prove you're bilingual to an employer?

"The best way to prove it is during the interview," Maya says. "If bilingualism is important, the employer will communicate with you (test you) in both languages — they'll know quickly enough if your language skills are right for the position."

When Christopher applied to be a TA at the University of Ottawa, he was asked to share a copy of his high school diploma (he studied extended French) and university transcripts, which highlighted his minor in French. When working as a teller at the National Bank of Canada in Ottawa, his language skills were put to the test, but he was asked only one question in French. The bilingual demand varies with the job.

Maya adds another place where you can really shine: "If the job posting is in French (or if the company is based in Quebec), send your CV and/or cover letter in French." What about my resumé?

If looking to indicate your bilingualism on your resumé, Maya advises against use of the word "bilingual," as it's too vague. It's best to be honest about your level of comfort and knowledge in both languages. After all, your employer isn't the only one who will suffer should you be asked to lead a presentation or write a report in a language you don't know well enough.

DIRTY DISMISSALS

Tumultuous terminations not taken lightly in court

WORKPLACE LAW

DANIEL LUBLIN
DAN@CANADAEMPLOYMENTLAWYER.COM
TWITTER: @DANLUBLIN

It is one of the most important concepts in workplace law — but it is not even clear how it applies.

Since 1997, when the Supreme Court presented Canadian workplaces with the Wallace decision, employers have had an obligation to play nice and behave well at the time of dismissal, or face paying additional "bad faith" damages to a former employee. As the Court reasoned, employees were particularly vulnerable at the time of dismissal and in need of additional protection.

But in the landmark decision in Honda nearly 11 years later, the Supreme Court considerably rewrote its own law. In that case the Court found that, unless there was evidence of some actual or physical harm stemming from a dismissal, employees should no longer be compensated for their mistreatment. Many employees were left shaking their heads and since this time, it has been unclear what, if any, damages they should receive if they are dismissed "in bad faith." Fortunately, a recent case seems to clarify the law.

When Sergio Coppola was dismissed from Capital Pontiac Buick in Regina, he was told the dealership was eliminating his position and that, since he had the least tenure among his group, he was losing his job. However, when Coppola tried to start his own business a few months later, his prospective business partner was told by one of the staff at Capital Pontiac that Coppola was fired because a car had gone missing and hinted that Coppola was at fault.

The allegation that Coppola had engaged in misconduct affected him greatly. Coppola's new business venture was delayed and he claimed that he was emotionally devastated, although he never went to see a doctor. Coppola sued his old employer for wrongful dismissal, based on the false allegations — and recently he was awarded additional damages based on the manner of his dismissal, even though there was no precise manner to calculate his alleged loss.

Optimistic in Pittsburgh

Doctors say tests show Crosby suffering soft-tissue damage, not fractured neck vertebrae

GENE J. PUSKAR/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Sidney Crosby and Penguins general manager Ray Shero speak to reporters in Pittsburgh on Tuesday.

Sidney Crosby says he has no issue with the Pittsburgh Penguins over his medical treatment and news of a soft-tissue neck injury gives him cause for encouragement.

"I think the biggest thing to take from it is that it's something I can work on. I can come in and get my neck worked on," the Penguins star told a news conference on Tuesday at the Consol Energy Center in Pittsburgh.

Crosby is back skating and says he has felt improvement.

"It's encouraging to be skating," he said. "I'm just happy at this point with doing that."

On Saturday, the Penguins confirmed that a specialist had diagnosed their captain with a neck injury in addition to his concussion-related problems. This came amidst reports that Crosby had a fracture to his C1 and C2 vertebrae — with Crosby's agent Pat Brisson saying it was too soon to draw a conclusion on that.

Still, it led to speculation that the Crosby camp was unhappy with the star's medical care in his return from concussion-related problems, something the Penguins sought to dispel Monday.

Crosby added his voice to that Tuesday.

"I think the team's been very encouraging," he said. "There's not a lot of answers with this stuff."

General manager Ray Shero told the news conference that Crosby had been receiving treatment for his neck and that the club had encouraged him to seek expert opinions.

The Pens, said Brisson, along with team owner Mario Lemieux and CEO David Morehouse went Monday to Philadelphia to have Dr. Alexander Vaccaro review the CT scan and MRI taken by Dr. Robert S. Bray last week in Los Angeles.

"There's a pretty big possibility that could be causing some of the issues, so I really hope that's the case, and hope with some treatment that it'll improve and that's hopefully the end of it."

SIDNEY CROSBY ON HIS SOFT-TISSUE NECK INJURY

Bray had diagnosed a neck injury but wanted someone else to review the results, the club said.

Vaccaro is a spinal trauma expert at Thomas Jefferson University Hospital and past president of the American Spinal Injury Association. His opinion was that Crosby was suffering from a soft-tissue injury of the neck that could be causing neurological symptoms.

"Bray has treated Crosby with an injection to alleviate swelling in the C1-2 joint of the neck and will be overseeing his progression with therapists," the team said in a statement. "Doctors say the symptoms of a soft-tissue neck injury are similar to concussion symptoms.

"Vaccaro, Bray and UPMC doctors all agree that Crosby is safe, the injury is treatable, and he will return to action when he is symptom-free."

Crosby said he hoped the injection was a "one-time thing."

NEW ENGLAND PATRIOTS RECEIVER CHAD OCHOCINCO, ON MAKING HIS FIRST SUPER BOWL APPEARANCE.

Patriots' Gronkowski says ankle feels better

The boot is off and Rob Gronkowski's ankle is feeling much better.

New England's All-Pro tight end shed his walking boot in time for media day Tuesday, and sounded optimistic he'd be lining up against the New York Giants in the Super Bowl on Sunday.

"I'm improving every day," Gronkowski said. "The only reason it's getting so blown up is because it's the Super Bowl. It's just like any other injury during any other week."

17

Number of touchdown catches made by Gronkowski this season, an NFL record for tight ends. He had 90 receptions overall for 1,327 yards.

Gronkowski, who suffered a high left ankle sprain in the AFC title game Jan. 22, said he could be anywhere from in perfect health to "two per cent" for the game, adding that it's still six days away.

The outgoing Gronkowski smiled frequently from the podium during his hour-long appearance that opened with a question, of course, about how he was feeling.

"Good. How are you feeling?" he replied.

At one point, Gronkowski even put on a red tri-cornered hat, reminiscent of those worn by the original patriots during the era of the American Revolution.

"He's obviously making progress," quarterback Tom Brady said of his key pass-catcher. "He's out of his boot today, which makes me feel a lot better. I told him he should write like 'Mom I love you' on his sock or something because I'm sure there'll be a lot of pictures of his sock.

"If anybody wants to be out there, it's him. No one's as tough as him."

Gronkowski was careful not to convey an overly optimistic attitude about his chances of playing, repeatedly saying he was working with the Patriots training staff and approaching the situation on a day-to-day basis.

He also was non-committal when asked if he could play if he had the injury during the regular season.

"I couldn't answer that," he said. "It's not a regular-season game. It's the Super Bowl this week and (we're) just preparing like it's a big game and it's the biggest game. It ain't no regular-season game. So you've got to treat it a lot differently."

Fiat 500c (Cabrio)

The 500c (Cabrio) is, depending on your viewpoint, either a convertible or a regular 500 with a giant power-operated roof. In 15 seconds, the two-ply cloth top folds accordion-style, leaving the roof pillars and side glass in place.

Sure it's quirky, but that's how it was originally done on the 1950s 500. As well as leaving your coiffure in tact, Fiat claims that the fixed side pillar design is far more rigid than open-air convertible designs.

The Cabrio features a buzzy 101-horsepower 1.4-litre four-cylinder engine that delivers at least adequate acceleration whether connected to a five-speed manual transmission, or optional six-speed automatic.

Fiat 500 Abarth

More performance assistance is on the way with the mid-2012 launch of the Fiat 500 Abarth. The model is named for Karl Abarth, who successfully tuned the original 500 for racing use (Abarth was to Fiat what John Cooper was to Mini).

The Abarth arrives with a turbocharged version of the 1.4 that makes 160 horsepower and 170 pound-feet of torque.

Also part of the package is a five-speed manual gearbox, sport-tuned suspension and exhaust, beefier brakes, special Abarth alloy wheels (in 16-, or optional 17-inch sizes), distinctive nosepiece and rear spoiler plus specific interior/exterior trim.

▶ Behold the Fiat 500 Abarth, in both white and black. The 500 is a small car with a small price tag, but it also makes an interesting style statement.

Can a small car really be mighty?

MALCOLM GUNN
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA
WHEELBASE MEDIA

How could it miss, really?

A cute, fun and economical car with Italian heritage at a base sticker price of just $17,000?

Well, it hasn't missed, exactly, but it has been a bumpy ride for Chrysler's Italy-based offshoot as it attempts to carve out a decent-sized slice of a rather small niche-market pie.

Now there's a new marketing boss and two new models to help reach an aggressive North American target of 50,000 cars a year.

But is it enough? And do North American buyers get it?

Fifty-plus years ago, the Volkswagen Beetle charmed North Americans with quirky styling and a highly effective ad campaign that, like the rear-engine, air-cooled car itself, broke all the rules. Since then, lightning has yet to strike twice, although the resurrected Mini Cooper in all its iconic glory has been more than moderately successful.

On these shores, the 500's heritage is far less appreciated, but at least the car delivers on the cute-and-cool factor. Of course, a spike in gas prices would really help to light a fire under the 500's sales chart.

For the 2012 model year, two new versions of the Fiat 500 await your consideration — the 500c (convertible) and the performance-minded Abarth.

With both versions appealing to a wider audience, it will be easier for Fiat to sell you on the idea of the 500, but keep in mind the small-car pie is still small in North America.

▶ The colour-coordinated dash panel makes the interior feel wider than it really is.

2012 Fiat 500

What you should know about the 2012 Fiat 500:

- Types: Two-door, front-wheel-drive sub-compact hatchback/convertible.
- Engines (hp): 1.4-litre DOHC I4 (101); 1.4-litre DOHC I4, turbocharged (160).
- Transmission: Five-speed manual; six-speed automatic (opt., except Abarth).
- Market position: Sub-compacts currently occupy an equally tiny percentage of the automotive landscape. The Fiat 500, along with new entries from General Motors and Toyota, indicates this category is definitely on the rise.
- Mileage: L/100 km (city/hwy) 6.7/5.1 (MT).

VEHICLE HAPPINESS POSSIBLE EVERY DAY

AUTO PILOT

MIKE GOETZ
DRIVE
@METRONEWS.CA

DAVE HOGAN/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Who says you need an Aston Martin Vanquish to be happy, like Mr. Bond over here? Be content with what you have and try to enjoy the little things in your driving life.

Some motoring circumstances will always give you a smile. Going flat out at the Nuburgring in a Porsche 911 GT3? Cruising the strip in a 1966 Mustang convertible? Drifting sideways in a Skyline GT-R? Pulling up to your high-school reunion in an Aston Martin Vanquish? Driving away from the dealership in your first new vehicle?

Those experiences are all well and good, but not everybody has access to expensive, or even inexpensive, machinery. And stellar occasions like that don't come up every day.

So if we're looking to add a bit more happiness to our lives every day, and we should, then maybe we should reconsider some of the smaller motoring moments, which can happen to us each and every day.

These moments might be small, but that doesn't mean they're insignificant. Vehicular happiness, like general happiness, is always somewhat fleeting anyways.

Here are a few examples of what I'm talking about…

• You just backed into a tight parking spot on a street, but unfortunately your rear bumper contacted the other car. You get out of the car like nothing happened, and nonchalantly stroll by, trying not to look like you're looking too hard at the other guy's bumper. No obvious marks! Yes!

• Your keys fall under the seat. While searching for them you come across a half-eaten pizza sub — but also the Pantera CD you thought was lost forever, and three toonies! Yes!

• You're doing 115 km/h in a 100 km/h zone. You pass a police cruiser on the side of the road. You stare at the cruiser in your rear view, and apply telekinetic brainpower to lock the cruiser in its stationary position. It's working! Yes!

• You try your usual parking spot first, because it's usually free. But this time it's not. So you circle closer to your actual destination, but with a heavy heart, knowing those spots are the first to go and always fully booked.

But there it is! An open spot right in front of your destination!

The perfect Costanza! Yes!

• You need a bathroom break and are forced to stop at a shady gas station. You're expecting no facilities, or third-world facilities, or facilities that require a key attached to something really long, like a shovel… But the facilities are vacant, welcoming and gorgeous! Yes!

• You run a yellow light. You feel guilty/bad. But the two cars behind you also ran the light. You're bad, but not as bad as them. There are drivers worse than you! Yes!

These are but a sampling of potential small moments of happy motoring at your disposal. Embrace them and others. Do not let them slip away forever into the heating and air-conditioning vents. They might be all you're going to get for a while.

CLK enjoyed for power, luxury, looks

SECOND GEAR

JUSTIN PRITCHARD
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA

Available in coupe or convertible variants, the Mercedes CLK-Class was available to Canadian shoppers from 2003 to 2009 before being replaced by the automaker's new CL lineup.

Available with a wide range of engine options and laundry list of high-end features, the CLK gave its drivers a highly personal and luxurious driving experience.

2003 to 2009 Mercedes CLK

Engine

Look for six- and eight-cylinder engines with power output ranging from 215 to 382 horsepower in standard models. The CLK's numerical designation represents engine size, for instance, with the CLK 320 getting a 3.2-litre V-6 engine.

What owners like

Owners love the CLK's looks, exclusivity and pride of ownership. Those with the 5.5-litre V-8 all rave about quiet, robust and silky smooth acceleration, and many owners report good gas mileage, too.

What owners dislike

Owner-stated complaints tend to be minimal, centreing around limited rear-seat space for taller passengers, and sometimes-clumsy transmission shift logic.

Common issues

Earlier models in this generation may have suffered from a coolant leak into the transmission, which can cause damage or even failure.

Ask the seller of an earlier CLK if they're aware of this problem, or if any work was ever performed to correct it on their vehicle.

Check under the hood, and under the car, for signs of oil leaks, too.

Verdict

The CLK was well-loved for its driving experience, performance and luxury — and it exhibits minimal worrisome problems.

This won't be a cheap car to insure and maintain, though a dealer-certified used model with no signs of trouble should be a reliable and enjoyable cruiser for the long haul.

Recyclables are only 'green' when they're recycled

DRIVING FORCE

JIL McINTOSH
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA

Automakers are increasingly incorporating recyclable materials into their new vehicles, but that's only half the story. Those materials are only "green" if they are actually reclaimed and recycled once the car's life is over.

At the University of Windsor, Dr. Susan Sawyer-Beaulieu is working with auto dismantlers, learning the process of taking cars apart to determine how to get those materials back into service.

"I'm helping dismantlers to understand their contributions to the overall vehicle life cycle process," she says.

"There has been a lot of work done to understand what the impacts are from vehicles during raw materials production, use and manufacturing, but the end-of-life has been the least understood."

Once considered junk, end-of-life vehicles are now valuable commodities that undergo a systematic dismantling process. Usable parts are stripped off and sold, fluids are drained and reused, and metal is shredded and recycled. After all that, about 15 to 20 per cent is left over.

"These non-metallic materials become what's called shredder residue," Sawyer-Beaulieu says.

"You're talking about materials such as plastics, fabrics, foam, glass and ceramics. People don't realize that this stuff has to be landfilled. My research is to figure out how it might be possible to recover some of these non-metallics and prevent them from being shredder residue."

Seats are the most likely candidates for landfill, even though they contain foam and fabric that could be recovered and recycled.

The bulky seats need to be stored, transported, taken apart, and their materials separated and sent to facilities for recycling.

The problem is that there currently isn't a widespread, efficient and economical way to do this.

♈ Aries March 21-April 20
Has someone taken advantage of you? Maybe, but more likely you are overreacting.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21
This could be a hectic week and most likely you'll find yourself rushing all over the place without getting much done.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21
Watch out you don't bite off a larger chunk than you can comfortably chew today.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 This could be and should be a lucky week for you, so don't be afraid to take the occasional risk. Chew today.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23
This could be and should be a lucky week for you, so don't be afraid to take the occasional risk.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22
A loved one seems to be in an emotional mood at the moment and it's unlikely their outlook will improve until later in the week.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23
You really don't have to explain your actions or your motives to anybody.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22
The more someone tries to tell you that something cannot be done the more determined you will be to prove them wrong.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 No matter how negative a picture certain people may be painting of your current situation all you need to know is that they are wrong.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20
Anyone who expects you to stay in one place over the next few days is going to be disappointed.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18
You seem to be a bit tense at the moment. Why is that?

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20
It seems you are having to react to one crisis after another of late. Is there an end in sight? Yes.
